Find a Student

Ready to engage young and skilled talent?

Why not start with a college or university student for a work integrated learning placement.

Students can join your organization from several different types of program for one or more semesters. And for an added bonus — employers can access wage subsidies of up to $7,500 per student term!

“For me, work integrated learning is such a valuable experience for our students. We have a young generation that is really full of energy and want to be participating and actively leading in the food manufacturing sector.”
